

AdTracker

Keeps track of changes made in your document and of the total time it was in use

Keeping track of who and when a QuarkXPress document has been revised is not only important when several people are working on a document. AdTracker lists these revisions, as well as documenting the number of times the document was saved. Additionally, AdTracker tells you the total time the document was in use — an invaluable feature when billing a client by the hour for design work.
