QbaseXT

Allows the bidirectional communication between QuarkXPress and other programs and databases

This XTension allows bidirectional communication between QuarkXPress and other programs and databases. Over several interfaces as AppleEvents, import and export and the clipboard complete XPress objects as there are text and picture frames can be generated or provided for other applications. QbaseXT supports all XPress text and picture formats. In the developer version it is possible to carry out a link-up to commercial systems or to develop database publishing systems with QuarkXPress as a layout system. The developer system contains a huge documentation, exemplary software and two developer licences.
